1. Before you start

Odibrick is not a listings board. On most portals you find a phone number and everything after that is your own problem. Here the platform stays involved through the whole transaction, and the reason is simple: most rental disputes are arguments about what was agreed and what condition the flat was in. Both of those are solvable by writing things down at the time.

So the journey has six stages, and you can always see which one you are in.

THE JOURNEY BAR, SHOWN ON EVERY PROPERTY PAGE AND TENANCY

What this means for you in practice

WHAT YOU GET	WHY IT MATTERS
A verification seal you can trust	A badge appears only when our team has actually checked that item. No badge means we have not checked it — not that something is wrong.
A lawyer-reviewed agreement	A qualified professional drafts and approves the document before anyone signs. You get a video call to ask what the clauses actually mean.
A payment ledger with references	Every rupee has a reference number, a due date and a receipt. Nothing is marked paid without a bank or gateway reference behind it.
A Day 1 condition record	You photograph the flat room by room when you move in. Both parties acknowledge it. That record is what a deposit deduction gets checked against a year later.

NOTE

Odibrick never holds your money. Rent and deposit go directly to the owner or through a licensed payment provider. What Odibrick keeps is the record that the payment happened.

2. Creating your account

1 Open the site and choose Create account

From the homepage, select List a property in the top right — the same page handles every account type — or go straight to `/register`.

REGISTRATION – CHOOSE 'RENT A HOME' AS YOUR ACCOUNT TYPE

2 Pick the right account type

Select Rent a home. This gives you a tenant account. If you later want to list a property too, support can add that role to your existing account — you do not need a second one.

3 Use a real email address

Notifications about your application, your agreement and your payments all arrive here. Use an address you actually check.

4 Choose a strong password

Ten characters minimum. The strength indicator under the field tells you where you stand. This account will hold your identity documents and your tenancy agreement, so it is worth a password you do not use anywhere else.

NOTE

Staff roles cannot be created from this form. Selecting a tenant, owner, agent or builder account is the only option, by design.

3. Verifying your identity

You cannot apply for a home until your identity is verified. This is not bureaucratic friction — it is the reason owners on this platform take applications seriously, and the reason the badge on their listing means something to you.

1 Go to Identity in your dashboard

Sign in, then choose Identity under Account in the left navigation. If you try to apply for a home first, Odibrick sends you here and explains why.

THE IDENTITY VERIFICATION FORM

2 Enter your name exactly as printed

If your ID says Priya S Sharma and you type Priya Sharma, the reviewer has to reject it. Match the document character for character.

3 Choose your document and enter the number

Aadhaar, PAN, passport, driving licence or voter ID. The number is encrypted before it is stored, and no screen anywhere in Odibrick will ever display it back in full — only the last four digits.

4 Upload a legible scan

JPEG, PNG or PDF up to 10 MB. Make sure all four corners are visible and the text is readable. A blurred photo taken at an angle is the single most common reason a submission comes back rejected.

5 Wait for a person to review it

This is a human reading your document, not an automated check, so it usually takes one to two working days. You will be notified either way. While it is pending, your dashboard shows Identity verification in progress.

SEARCH FILTERS – THE TRUST GROUP IS UNIQUE TO ODIBRICK

The filters worth understanding

FILTER	WHAT IT ACTUALLY DOES
Documents verified	Shows only listings where our team has checked the ownership papers. Fewer results, but every one has been looked at.
Odibrick Protected	The owner has taken the Protected plan, which includes condition reports, legal support and eligible partner insurance products.
Available now	Move-in date is today or earlier. Useful if you are on a deadline.
Listed by	Owner, agent or builder. Some people prefer dealing directly with an owner; agents often have more inventory.
Pets allowed	Filters on the owner's stated position. Confirm it in the agreement — a listing preference is not a binding term until it is written into the document.

WORTH KNOWING

Rent, deposit and maintenance are three separate numbers. A flat at ₹28,000 with ₹1,12,000 deposit and ₹3,000 maintenance costs you ₹1,43,000 on day one and ₹31,000 a month. The property page shows all three, plus a total move-in cost.

Check these five things before you enquire

- 1

The verification seals

Four seals is a fully checked listing: identity, owner, ownership documents and address. Fewer seals is not a warning sign on its own — it means we have not confirmed those items ourselves, and the page says so plainly rather than leaving a gap you might read as approval.
- 2

The move-in cost box

On the right-hand side. First month plus deposit, totalled. Odibrick service fees are billed separately and shown before you commit to anything.
- 3

Lock-in and notice period

In the Details table. Lock-in is how long you cannot leave without penalty; notice is how much warning you must give. Six months and sixty days are common. Both are negotiable, and the legal consultation is where you negotiate them.
- 4

The property record

Near the bottom of the page. A timestamped list of everything Odibrick has recorded about this property — when it was listed, when it was verified, previous tenancies. A property with history is a property you can check.
- 5

What the address does not tell you

Search results and public pages show the locality, not the exact address. You get the full address once the owner accepts your application. This protects the current occupants, and it will protect you too once you live there.

Start rental process

Submits a formal application. This needs verified identity, and it puts real information in front of the owner: how many people will live there, your preferred move-in date, how long you want to stay.

Applying needs a verified identity.

THE APPLICATION FORM

- 1

Be honest about occupants

If four people will live there, say four. An occupancy figure that turns out to be wrong on move-in day is a breach of the agreement you are about to sign, and it is a bad way to start a year-long relationship.
- 2

Give a realistic move-in date

The owner plans around it, and it becomes the tenancy start date in the agreement.
- 3

Write something in the message box

Owners receive several applications. Two sentences about who you are and why you want this particular flat does more work than you would expect.
- 4

Track it under Applications

Your dashboard shows every application you have sent and its current status: submitted, under review, shortlisted, accepted or declined.

NOTE

When an owner accepts your application, three things happen at once: a tenancy is created, a legal case is opened, and the listing is paused so nobody else applies. That is why acceptance is a considered step and not an instant reply.

7. The legal consultation

Once your application is accepted, Odibrick's legal team schedules a video consultation with you and the owner together. This is the part of the process that does not exist anywhere else, and it is the part worth taking seriously.

What happens on the call

- A member of the legal team walks both parties through the terms — rent, deposit, lock-in, notice period, who pays for what repairs.
- You can ask what any clause actually means, in plain language.
- Anything the two of you agree on is written into the draft afterwards.
- The outcome is recorded as a note on the case, so there is no argument later about what was said.

Five things worth asking about

ASK ABOUT	WHY
The deposit refund window	How many days after move-out must the owner return it? Thirty is common. Get a number into the document.
Who pays for what repairs	The usual split is that the owner covers structural and appliance failure, the tenant covers consumables and damage. Agree the boundary now.
Lock-in versus notice	If you might be transferred for work, a six-month lock-in matters. Say so.
Rent escalation on renewal	Many agreements build in an annual increase. Know the number before you sign, not eleven months later.
What happens if the owner sells	It is worth knowing where you stand.

IMPORTANT

The legal team drafts and advises. They do not represent you personally, and nothing on the call is a substitute for your own lawyer if the stakes warrant one. What the consultation gives you is a qualified professional explaining the document to both parties at the same time, which removes a great deal of the asymmetry from a rental negotiation.

8. Reading and signing the agreement

You will be notified when the agreement is ready. It reaches you only after a qualified member of the legal team has approved that exact version — the system will refuse a signature on a draft that has not been approved.

AN AGREEMENT AWAITING YOUR SIGNATURE

- 1

Read the whole thing

It is not long. The clauses come from a reviewed library and are written to be readable. If a clause does not make sense, that is a reason to ask, not a reason to scroll past.
- 2

Check the numbers against what you agreed

Rent, deposit, maintenance, lock-in, notice period, start and end dates. If the consultation produced a different number to the one on screen, stop and raise it before signing.
- 3

Note who approved it

The page names the legal professional who approved this version. If the document is redrafted after approval, the approval is cancelled automatically and it must be reviewed again — a post-approval edit cannot reach your signature.
- 4

Sign

Tick the consent box and confirm. Your signature is recorded with a timestamp and your IP address.
- 5

Wait for it to be executed

The agreement becomes Executed only when every party has signed. Until then the page says plainly that it is a draft and not in force. Once executed, an ochre Executed seal appears with the date.

IMPORTANT

An executed agreement in Odibrick is a signed document. It is not a registered one — stamp duty and registration are state-specific and are handled separately. The platform tracks the stamping status but does not pay duty on your behalf.

9. Paying the deposit and first month

The moment the agreement is executed, your move-in dues appear on the ledger with a reference number each.

THE PAYMENT LEDGER SHOWING MOVE-IN DUES

- 1

Select Pay now

Odibrick either opens a licensed payment provider, or — if online collection is not enabled — gives you bank transfer instructions with a reference to quote.
- 2

Quote the reference

If you are transferring directly, put the reference code (ODB-PAY-2026-000412) in the transfer narration. It is how the credit gets matched to your tenancy.
- 3

Wait for confirmation

The entry moves to Paid only when the provider confirms it or an Odibrick operator matches it against the bank statement. The system will not mark it paid because you say you paid — which is the same protection working in your favour when a landlord claims you did not.
- 4

Keep the receipt

Once settled, the receipt is in your document vault. Every payment carries its bank or gateway reference, permanently.

NOTE

When both the deposit and the first month clear, your tenancy moves automatically to Check-in pending and a task appears on your dashboard.

10. The Day 1 condition report

READ THIS TWICE

This is the single most valuable thing you will do on Odibrick. Ten minutes of photography on the day you get the keys is what stands between you and an argument about your deposit eleven months from now. Do it before you move any furniture in.

THE CONDITION REPORT WIZARD, ONE ROOM AT A TIME

How to do it properly

1

Start the report the day you get the keys

From your dashboard task or the tenancy page. The report walks you through seven rooms — entrance, living room, kitchen, bedroom, bathroom, balcony, utility — and the elements in each.

2

Rate honestly, including things that are fine

Marking everything Damaged is as useless as marking everything New. A credible record is one that mostly says Good and specifically flags the four things that are not.

3

Photograph every single defect

A scratch you noted but did not photograph is a claim. A scratch you photographed is a record. Get close enough that the damage is unmistakable, and take a wider shot showing where in the room it is.

4

Record the meter readings

Electricity, water and gas, on the last screen. This prevents you inheriting someone else's bill.

Submit — and understand that it locks

You need at least five items and five photographs. Once submitted the report cannot be edited. That immutability is exactly what makes it useful as evidence, so take the extra ten minutes before you submit.

6

The owner acknowledges it

They review and either agree or flag a disagreement. When both parties have acknowledged, the report is sealed and your tenancy becomes Active.

Both parties have accepted this record. It is the reference point for any deposit question at the end of the tenancy.

A FULLY ACKNOWLEDGED CONDITION REPORT

A short checklist for photographers

- Shoot in daylight if you can. Phone flash flattens detail.
- Every wall of every room, plus the ceiling if there are stains.
- Inside cupboards and under the sink — leaks start where nobody looks.
- Close-ups of every scratch, crack, stain, dent and chip.
- All appliances, switched on, to show they work.
- The meters, close enough to read the digits.
- Window and door frames, and the state of the paint around them.

11. Living there

Rent

Monthly rent appears on your ledger with a due date. Pay it the same way you paid the first month, quoting the reference. Your payment history builds up as a record, which is useful the next time you rent anywhere.

Maintenance requests

Raise these from the tenancy page rather than by phone. A request in the system has a ticket number, a timestamp, a status and a photograph — which matters if the same leak is still unfixed six weeks later.

RAISING A MAINTENANCE REQUEST

PRIORITY	USE IT FOR
Emergency	Active water ingress, electrical danger, no water, security failure — something causing damage right now.
High	No hot water, a failed appliance you depend on, a leak that is contained but worsening.
Normal	Most things. A slow drain, a flickering light, a sticking door.
Low	Cosmetic. Worth recording, not worth an urgent call-out.

Your tenancy record

Every event — the agreement, each payment, each maintenance request, the condition report — is added to the tenancy's record spine with a timestamp. Both you and the owner see the same list. Nothing is reconstructed from memory later.

A TENANCY RECORD SPINE PARTWAY THROUGH THE YEAR

12. Moving out and getting your deposit back

1 Give notice in writing, through the platform

Check your notice period in the agreement — sixty days is common. Serve it from the tenancy page so the date is recorded. A WhatsApp message is not a record.

2 Fix what you broke

Between notice and move-out you have time to repair anything that is genuinely your damage. It is almost always cheaper than a deduction.

3 File the move-out condition report

Same wizard, same rooms. Odibrick automatically compares it against your Day 1 record, element by element.

Compared with the Day 1 record

2 items changed, 34 unchanged

Kitchen · Appliances Fair → Damaged
Bathroom · Fixtures Fair → Damaged

This comparison is a record, not a determination of liability. Deposit deductions are agreed between the parties or decided through the dispute process.

THE AUTOMATIC MOVE-OUT COMPARISON

IMPORTANT

Read that callout carefully, because it protects you. Odibrick produces the diff; it does not rule on who owes what. Fair wear and tear over a year is not damage, and a comparison showing deterioration is the beginning of a conversation, not the end of one.

4 Agree the deductions, or dispute them

If the owner proposes a deduction you accept, the deposit is returned less that amount and the payment is recorded. If you disagree, open a dispute.

5 The deposit is returned and recorded

The refund appears on your ledger with its bank reference, like every other payment.

13. If something goes wrong

Opening a dispute

From the tenancy page, choose Open a dispute. Pick a category — deposit, property damage, maintenance, payment, agreement, notice period or access — state the amount if money is involved, and summarise the problem.

Attach your evidence

This is where the last twelve months of record-keeping pays off. You can attach your condition reports, payment records, maintenance tickets and documents directly. A dispute backed by a timestamped Day 1 photograph is a very different conversation from one backed by recollection.

IMPORTANT

Odibrick's disputes team reviews the record and helps both parties reach a resolution. They do not adjudicate. No automated decision is made anywhere in this process, and Odibrick has no authority to compel either party. If the matter cannot be resolved, your legal remedies through the rent authority or the courts are entirely unaffected.

Support tickets

For anything that is not a dispute with the other party — a problem with the platform, a question about your account, a document that will not upload — raise a support ticket under Account.

14. Common questions

Does Odibrick hold my deposit?

No. Odibrick is non-custodial by default — your money goes directly to the owner or through a licensed payment provider. What Odibrick keeps is the record that the payment happened, with its reference.

Can I apply for more than one home at a time?

Yes. Each application is tracked separately under Applications. Owners cannot see your other applications.

What if the owner never responds?

Applications and enquiries are timestamped. If a listing goes stale, its response rate is visible to our team, and you can raise a support ticket.

Is my Aadhaar number safe?

It is encrypted before it is stored, and no screen in the platform ever displays it in full — only the last four digits, to anyone, including staff. Every access to your documents is logged.

Why can I not see the full address before applying?

It protects whoever currently lives there. You get the exact address as soon as the owner accepts your application, and the same protection applies to you once you move in.

Can I edit my condition report after submitting it?

No. Immutability is what makes it credible as evidence. If something is missing, note it in a maintenance request or raise it with the owner so it goes on the record another way.

What if I need to leave during the lock-in period?

The agreement governs this. It typically means forfeiting some portion of the deposit or paying rent for the remaining lock-in. Read that clause before you sign, and negotiate it at the consultation if it worries you.

Does a missing verification seal mean the listing is fake?

No. It means we have not checked that specific item. We would rather show you an honest gap than a badge that implies more than we know.

Who do I contact if I am locked out of my account?

Raise it through the support page. There is no self-service password reset in this version of the platform.

Where to get help

Support tickets are the fastest route and they create a record. From your dashboard: Account → Support. Include the reference code of whatever you are asking about — a payment reference, an agreement number, a ticket number — and if you saw an error message, the trace ID at the bottom of it.
